It is clear at least that the first object in the attempt to make new songs must be to break down the foreign traditions that cramp the writing of English verse; and the second is to remove the remnants of foreign expression that block the way to a vivid emotional appeal. If these ends are made definite the task of writing songs may be left to the more competent. In the beginning I tried to write a song with a universal appeal. After many attempts I gave up this aim as an impossible ideal. The attempt to arouse the many diverse human emotions by one group of words, or by one tune, fails almost inevitably to touch any deep emotion. It is at best a mere skimming of the surface, not an expression of real feeling. I then tried a more simple plan - that...
